Organ Donation Promotion Awareness Week (November 21 – 25, 2016)

Dear colleagues / students / alumni,

In support of the Government’s initiative to promote organ donation, the University will be launching an Organ Donation Promotion Awareness week (November 21 – 25, 2016).

Organ transplant is a well-proven intervention which improves and saves lives of patients suffering from end-stage organ failure. The success rates of organ transplant in Hong Kong are very high, thanks to our medical colleagues in Queen Mary Hospital. Organ transplant has become the only hope for patients with organ failure in order to live on. However, the availability of organ donor remains the biggest challenge to organ transplant in Hong Kong, which has a very low organ donation rate. There are now more than 2,000 patients and their family waiting desperately everyday for suitable organs, which are very hard to come by.

We hope that through the Organ Donations Promotion Awareness Campaign, we can raise awareness and understanding of the shortage of organ donation in Hong Kong, and the facts and benefits about organ donation. During the promotion awareness campaign, there will be exhibition, talk and sharing by organ donors. Details are as follows:
